Serwent acquires Høytrykk & Vakumteknikk AS, strengthening its position in Norway

Serwent, a leading provider of critical infrastructure and environmental services in the Nordics, has acquired Høytrykk & Vakumteknikk AS ("HøyVak"). The acquisition adds capacity and technical expertise within Serwent's existing service areas and marks an important step in the group's growth strategy for water and wastewater services.

Founded in 2016 and based at Torp in Fredrikstad, HøyVak has built a strong position in Østfold, with expertise in high-pressure jetting, sludge and super suction, pipe inspection and industrial cleaning. Like Serwent, the company operates a 24-hour emergency service for customers in both the public and private sectors. The agreement also includes the subsidiary Østfold Brønnspyling AS.

"We are proud to welcome HøyVak to Serwent. They bring a strong regional brand, deep technical expertise and dedicated employees who will strengthen our offering across Norway," says Rune Kristiansen, Country Manager, Serwent Norway.

"We look forward to continuing HøyVak's good work with the support of a larger group, and to creating even more value and more sustainable solutions for our customers together," says Jonas Kristiansen, Managing Director of Høytrykk & Vakumteknikk AS.

The acquisition has been completed. HøyVak becomes part of Serwent's Norwegian division while retaining its established name, its office at Torp and its current operations. Going forward, the two companies will work closely together to make use of shared resources, further develop the customer offering and strengthen both logistics and technology.
